3,000 Swedish commuters are now using chips implanted in their hands to pay for their journey