

A California company has reported that they have created the first cloned mature human embryo from single skin cells taken from an adult. The article goes on to say that "few, if any, technical barriers may remain to the creation of cloned babies";